

ABSTRACT

A recording medium having recorded thereon information of images coded by performing motion compensation is provided to obtain high quality images without error accumulation. Such information includes rounding method information specifying a positive rounding method or a negative rounding method for interpolation intensity values of pixels in performing the motion compensation.